SENATE CONSIDERS REVENUE BILL AKRON CONTINUES FOLLOWING TRAGEDY

TWO SEAMEN KILLED ATTEMPTING TO MOOR DIRIGIBLE TO MAST

Third, Carried Aloft On Rope, Taken Safely
Aboard Airship

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 12.—The navy dirigible Akron was ready to cast off from its mooring mast today and fly to Sunnyvale, Calif., after two men were killed and a third rescued from a dangling rope high in the air on the failure of an initial landing attempt.

Charles "Bud" Cowart, young sailor from Sand Springs, Okla., was jerked 300 feet into the air with Nigel M. Fenton, Fresno, Calif., and Robert Edsall of Elkhart, Ind., when the giant ship whipped upward.

Fenton and Edsall were unable to maintain their grips and dropped to death, but Cowart fashioned himself a "boson's chair" from a loop of the rope and for an hour and a half swung wildly in the air, 200 feet above the earth until he was pulled up to safety.

Weather and an inexperienced ground crew were blamed for the disastrous landing attempts.

Heat of the sun's rays caused the helium gas of the dirigible to expand, while 200 sailors, unused to handling the craft, manned the mooring ropes, and a sudden gust of wind whipped the Akron upward.

Four attempts were made to bring the Akron up to the mooring mast. Three times the ground crew "walked" the dirigible forward, but each time gusts of wind whipped the giant ship up, and the sailors let go the mooring cables.

At the fourth attempt, a cable on the starboard side snapped. The Akron rolled on its port side. The nose shot upward, and the port side ground crew—all but four men—let go the cables.

As thousands of spectators held their breath, one by one three of the men let go. E. G. Walkup fell a short distance. His arm was broken.

Fenton and Edsall fell 330 feet and were killed.

Cowart, lashed wildly about, was carried further upward.

The Akron shot to a height of 1,000 feet as Cowart wrapped a loop of the rope about his feet, fashioned himself a seat and prepared to ride it out.

Swinging to and fro like a tiny pendulum, it seemed that he must be snapped loose as the cable whipped in the wind, suspended from the swaying dirigible.

Firemen were brought to the scene with nets hoping to catch him should he fall. Naval officials conferred on some method of rescue.

At first it was thought the Akron might be brought low over the water, where Cowart could drop and be picked up by a boat. Finally a volunteer from the Akron climbed hand over hand down the rope to determine how secure Cowart had made himself.

Officers with glasses were unable to determine whether he was tangled precariously in the rope or had made himself secure. Risking his own life, clambering hand over hand like a monkey on a swinging string, the volunteer made his way

JUST OBEYING ORDERS!

Gets Thrilling Ride On Rope Hanging From Dirigible Because Of Obedience

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 12.—A husky farmer boy who is learning to be a sailor experienced a hair-raising and dangerous adventure because he was taught, right at the start of his naval career, to obey orders.

When Charles "Bud" Cowart, of Sand Springs, Okla., grabbed hold of a mooring cable from the navy dirigible Akron yesterday, he remembered that an officer had ordered him and the rest of the ground crew to "hang onto that rope."

When the dirigible suddenly soared aloft, Cowart obeyed orders. He hung on.

As the ship rose high into the air, two other sailors who also had "hung on," lost their holds and fell hundreds of feet to their deaths. The others had dropped from the same cable on which he dangled, he held himself with one hand while he looped the loose end of rope around his legs with the other. Fashioning a regular "boson's seat" in that manner, he saved his life.

But his adventure had not ended. He dangled in midair, 200 feet beneath the dirigible and nearly 2,000 feet from earth for an hour and a half before he was hauled into the Akron.

Once inside and safe, he expressed an immediate desire to examine the great craft. He appeared to have suffered not a bit during his perilous experience, and refused to be bundled up to ward off possible serious effects of exposure and shock.

When the dirigible landed and was moored, he refused to talk about his experience.

"I hung on because I was ordered to hang on," he said. "I'll have to see my manager before I talk."

Cowart is a welterweight fighter, and as such he has his manager.

The manager appeared to take precedence over Lt. Comdr. C. E. Rosendahl himself, for although the Akron's commander urged Cowart to tell of his experience, not a word would he utter.

Neither would he pose for a picture until Lt. Comdr. Rosendahl and Commander C. N. Gray, commander of the 11th Naval District posed with him.

Newspapermen approached the manager.

Would he let Cowart talk?

"We'll sell our story to the highest bidder," said the manager.

There were no bidders.

France Mourns During Rites For President

PARIS, May 12.—Heavy, rain-laden skies cast mourning over all France today as the nation buried its murdered President, Paul Doumer, with the fullest military and civil ceremonial.

The funeral procession left the Elysee Palace at 5 a. m. as a million persons lined the route to Notre Dame Cathedral and the Pantheon, the nation's political shrine. The Prince of Wales, the King of the Belgians, the Duke of Aosta, Prince Paul of Serbia, and diplomats of forty nations walked in the rain behind the hearse. Ambassador Walter E. Edge represented President Hoover.

After mass at the cathedral, Doumer's body was taken to the Pantheon and placed on the catafalque. A smoking urn stood at each corner of the catafalque. Injured war veterans grouped on the sides carried historic battle flags.

Premier Andre Tardieu's funeral oration was broadcast. Thousands of troops then paraded past the Pantheon and dipped their flags in honor of Doumer.

Eight black horses drew the hearse through the streets. Thousands of troops marched to the beat of muffled drums. Robed barbers, members of the academies and the university faculties, parliamentarians and the cabinet led by President Albert LeBrun and Premier Tardieu and Doumer's family kept pace with the solemn funeral tread.

The funeral procession was two miles long, which meant that mounted troops at the head of the line arrived at Notre Dame before the final delegations left the Elysee. Schools and business houses were closed. Mourning was observed throughout the nation.

The most solemn part of the ceremony took place at Notre Dame, where the president's body was placed on a catafalque seven feet high, draped in black, beneath a canopy of black lined with the tricolor of France. Candles cast the only light on the scene.

Requiem mass was said by Cardinal Verdier, archbishop of Paris. The procession then climbed the hills above Paris to the Pantheon, where Doumer's body will rest until it is removed to the family cemetery for burial beside his sons who died in the World War.

Police were particularly strict in guarding the Prince of Wales, King Albert, and other royal representatives.

INGALLS MAJORITY MOUNTS TO 28,000; CAMPAIGN PLANNED

Choice Of Liberals
May Affect Party
Convention

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—With Ohio's first combined presidential and state primary election a matter of finished business, the attention of party leaders turned today to plans for the November campaign and to a consideration of the results of the primary.

One matter of immediate interest is the effect the Ohio election may have upon the national conventions next month, particularly upon that of the Republican party. For the first time since prohibition the Republican party in Ohio will have as its standard-bearers in the state two avowed wets, Attorney-General Gilbert Bettman for U. S. senator and David S. Ingalls for governor.

Supporters of both, during the recent campaign, declared their nomination in the primary would serve as notice upon the party nationally that Ohio, home of the Anti-Saloon League, was no longer a dry state, and would accomplish more than anything else to cause the adoption of a wet plank in the Republican national platform in June.

With practically complete unofficial returns tabulated, Bettman's plurality over Louis J. Taber, the Anti-Saloon League candidate for senator, exceeded 52,000 votes.

Ingalls' plurality has amounted to 28,000 votes over Secretary of State Clarence J. R. Brown, listed as "satisfactory" by the league. Former Governor Myers V. Cooper, three times the nominee of his party and a favorite of the dry

HE'S GRATEFUL

CLEVELAND, O., May 12.—David S. Ingalls, Republican candidate for governor, nominated at Tuesday's primary, today issued a statement thanking those who had voted for him and expressed the hope for a party unity in the fall to "carry on for victory."

He announced he would leave Cleveland Sunday for Washington to resume his duties as assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aeronautics. He plans to delay any active campaigning until late summer or early fall.

forces, ran a poor third, 158,000 votes behind Ingalls and 130,000 votes back of Brown.

Governor George White polled a more than six-to-one vote over his opponent, Glenn Starr Ross, of Columbus, who received fewer than the usual number of anti-administration votes.

Revised returns today removed any doubt of the nomination of Appeals Judge Carl V. Weygant, Cleveland, for chief justice of the supreme court of the Democratic ticket. His plurality over Municipal Judge Frank S. Day, Cleveland, will approximate 10,000 votes, unless there are material changes in the official returns.

Closeness of this race was a surprise to observers and it appeared for a time that official returns might be necessary to decide it. Day established an early lead and

SELECT TWO WOMEN FOR CONGRESS RACE

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—Two women, Miss Florence E. Allen, Cleveland, judge of the Ohio supreme court, and Mrs. Edith McClure Patterson, Dayton are among the forty-four candidates for congress nominated in the twenty-two Ohio districts at Tuesday's primary election.

Judge Allen won an easy victory for the Democratic nomination in the 22nd district, and Mrs. Patterson defeated two men opponents for the Republican nomination in the third district.

At the November election, Miss Allen will oppose Congressman Chester C. Bolton, Lyndhurst, re-nominated by the Republicans. Mrs. Patterson will oppose Congressman Byron P. Harlan, Dayton, re-nominated without opposition on the Democratic ticket.

Closest races for congressional nominations came in the sixth and seventh districts. In the sixth, Mack Sauer, Ripley, had jumped into the lead for the Republican nomination in a four-cornered contest.

Final result is in doubt.

HUSBAND WILL FACE CHARGE OF SLAYING WIFE; JURY CALLED

Second Conspirator Kills
Self When Arrest
Near

MILLERSBURG, O., May 12.—A tiny court room, packed with curious hill folks, was the setting today for another chapter of the fatal story of an executed murder plot in which one of the conspirators killed himself rather than face the law.

In the court room of Justice of the Peace J. K. Snyder of Holmes County, Herbert Meeker, a young farmer and central figure in the plot, was to be arraigned on charges of killing his girl-wife, Gertrude. And in the adjoining County of Wayne, the body of his neighbor and co-plotter, Harold Young, was being prepared for burial. Young mortally wounded himself at midnight Tuesday just as two sheriff's knocked on his front door to arrest him on suspicion.

Meeker, 23, was to be arraigned on a first-degree murder warrant which was filed after he had confessed to the conspiracy. He said his wife, who was 18, had quarreled with him and threatened to "cut my throat." It was then, he said, that he and his neighbor decided to put her out of the way. According to his confession he drove her to a lonely road where Young felled her with a tire pump and he used his car as a juggernaut to "make sure she was dead." Her body was then cast into the muddy waters of Killbuck Creek.

A first degree murder indictment will be sought of the grand jury which convenes tomorrow, County Prosecutor Elmo Estill said.

Young was the brother of Homer Young, 28, husband of Meeker's twin sister. Prosecutor Estill said today that Meeker's confession involved a relative and that the county grand jury would be asked to consider an indictment against him as well as Meeker.

Meeker talked to the relative prior to the murder and the latter said: "Something's got to be done to get her (Meeker's wife) out of the way." Prosecutor Estill said.

ROSA PONSSELLE IS OPERATED UPON

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 12.—Rosa Ponselle, the Metropolitan Opera star, underwent a serious operation at St. Raphael's Hospital here today.

Dr. William F. Verdi, performed the operation. A priest, the Rev. Jeremiah Curtin, waited outside the operating room to attend the soprano.

An effort was made to conceal the star's presence in the hospital.

Tiny Shacks Reveal Gruesome Tragedy; Hunt For Poison

CLEVELAND, O., May 12.—Coroner A. J. Pearse today started an inquiry into the deaths of three men whose bodies were found in two tiny huts in the isolated "jungle" overlooking the old Ohio canal in Valley View Village, a suburb.

There were no clues to identity of the victims and little to indicate the manner of their deaths when the bodies were discovered late last night.

An anonymous telephone call to Garfield Heights police led to finding of the bodies. All three victims had been dead more than a week, according to County Detective John Toner.

Two of the victims lay on bunks in one of the huts and the third was lying on a bunk in a second shack about thirty feet away. Their hands were clenched, as though they had died in agony.

In front of one of the shacks the investigators found a crudely constructed stove over which hung a kettle containing what Toner described as "Mulligan stew."

Toner advanced the theory the victims might have died from poisoned mushrooms which they used in their stew. An analysis of all food found in the shacks and of water from a nearby brook was to be made.

The men were all of middle age. Marshal Albert Hogue of Valley View said he had talked to the three men two weeks ago when he went there to investigate complaints of chicken-stealing. "There are dozens of little shacks in the woods around there," Marshal Hogue said. "Sometimes there are as many as fifty men living in that vicinity."

Search of other shacks revealed that all were deserted. Marshal Hogue said he believed other men living in the "hobo" colony had fled after they discovered the bodies.

JURY DELIBERATES IN FLEMING CASE

PIQUETTE, O., May 12.—The jury hearing criminal libel charges against Grover W. Fleming, editor and publisher of the Ohio Examiner, a weekly publication, was to resume its deliberations today.

The jurors, who debated the case for eight hours yesterday afternoon and last night, were unable to reach a decision and Judge J. H. Smith of municipal court, wishing to avoid a retrial, decided to let the jury continue its deliberations today.

Fleming was accused by Charles Sauer, a city patrolman of having printed a story that he (Sauer) had sent an aunt, Mrs. Mary Sauer, to a hospital for the insane so he could obtain her property.

Fleming, placed on the stand declared that if he were fined or sentenced or both, he would pay up and suffer like a man because he believed he had "cleaned up" the local police force.

CIGARETTE TAX YIELDS MILLIONS

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—Revenue collections from the cigarette tax have passed the $3,000,000 mark, it was announced today by State Treasurer Day.

The total income from the tax totaled $3,012,231.32 at the close of business Wednesday, according to Day.

The tax became effective Sept. 1, 1931.

REVENGE KILLER HELD AFTER SHOOTING TO AVENGE HIS SON

WAVERLY, O., May 12.—A father who avenged his son's slaying was held in Pike County jail here today while officials considered filing charges against him.

Joseph Reilly, 60, of the Camp Creek neighborhood, admitted to officers he had killed a neighboring farmer, Charles Pratt, 54, to avenge the slaying of his son, John, 34, in an election row just as the polls closed Tuesday evening.

HELENE DIVORCED

Despite the charges of Lowell Sherman, screen actor, that his wife Helene Costello, former actress, read naughty books, called him mad names and once knocked his mother down, Mrs. Sherman was granted the divorce in their sensational suit at Los Angeles, on a cross-complaint charging cruelty. Photos show Sherman on the stand and his recent wife, in court.

FINAL UNOFFICIAL ELECTION FIGURES ARE NOW AVAILABLE

Result Not Changed;
Wilberforce Lone
Tardy Precinct

Tardiness on the part of one precinct in Xenia Twp. delayed tabulation by the board of elections of the complete unofficial vote recorded in Greene County until almost noon, Wednesday.

After maintaining a sleepless vigil all night Tuesday, board members finally shattered a pre-election and paid an informal visit to Wilberforce—the lone missing precinct—where they assisted a fatigued precinct election official to finish counting the thirty-five or forty remaining Republican ballots.

Handicapped, they reported, by poor lighting facilities that made their tedious task all the more difficult, officials of the Wilberforce precinct had been tabulating returns ever since the polls closed at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday.

They had completed the Democratic vote, and were still laboriously engaged in counting Republican votes when the board members sped to the rescue late Wednesday morning.

About 11:30 a. m. Wednesday, seventeen hours after the polls had closed, the 212 Republican and nine Democratic votes in the delinquent precinct had been transferred to the abstracts, and the unofficial count, which took longer than any

MEASURE DESIGNED TO BALANCE BUDGET IS BEFORE SOLONS

More Than Billion To Be Tax Payers'
Burden

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The senate was scheduled at 2 p. m. today to begin consideration of a revenue measure that will load a new burden of $1,030,000,000 on the shoulders of American taxpayers.

The measure is designed to cope with unprecedented federal treasury deficits which began in 1931. This year's deficit alone is expected to aggregate $3,000,000,000 when the fiscal year closes at midnight, June 30.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in reporting the bill, acknowledged that it probably would not exactly balance the $3,996,672,450 federal budget in the next fiscal year. But the new taxes, combined with government economies, are expected to make federal income and expenditures equal in 1934.

The house wrecked one economy program designed to save approximately $200,000,000. A bi-partisan senate committee is now drafting a new economy plan expected by Smoot to save $230,000,000. Economy is to be achieved by reducing federal salaries either by furloughs without pay or straight cuts by consolidating various agencies and bureaus, and by reducing many government projects to bare essentials.

The process of closing the gap between federal income and outgo is expensive for the taxpayers. It is made necessary by a combination of business depression and constantly increasing federal expenditures. Depression cut deeply into a major source of revenue—the income tax.

The increase of federal expenditures is best suggested by the fact that the appropriation this year for war veterans and their surviving dependents is greater than the entire ordinary expenditures of the United States government in 1916. The veterans and their dependents will get almost $1,000,000,000 for hospitalization, disability, retirement and pensions. The $2,000,000,000 bonus of adjusted compensation project, however, appears to be dead.

Any taxpayer who expects material future reduction of the aggregate costs of government probably will be disappointed. The history of such is that costs do not decrease much and they swell with war.

Leaders of both parties are agreed that the budget must be balanced. The tax bill, subject to some amendment is to do most of the job. There have been proposed a one per cent sales tax and a tax on legalized beer as substitutes for various levies in the tax bill. Adoption of either is unlikely. Greatest senate opposition is developing to the tariff levies in the bill. They are not considered important so far as revenue is concerned, but rather are to protect the coal, copper, lumber and oil industries. It will be difficult to eliminate tariffs without forcing a summer session of congress.

Normal income tax rates have been slightly more than doubled. Prevailing rates are 1 1/2, 3 and 5 per cent on the first and second $4,000 of taxable income and the remainder, respectively. New rates are 3, 6 and 9 per cent. The exemptions for single and married men are reduced to $1,000 and $2,500 from $1,500 and $3,500.

FRACTIONAL DROP IN WHEAT FUTURES

CHICAGO, May 12.—Wheat futures lost 5/8 to one cent in a reversal of trend on the Chicago board of trade today on the weakness at Liverpool and in the stock market.

With little support to check the reaction, May wheat dropped one cent from yesterday's close, when the market was engaged in a general upswing.

Other months showed smaller losses.

BANDITS ROB TEN

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—Three bandits held up ten men in a news agency at the intersection of two main streets here Wednesday evening, took $200 in cash and a diamond ring valued at $350, and fled. They escaped in an automobile, the license for which had been issued in Cleveland. The news agency is a half block from the state capitol.

TWO BOYS DROWN
NEW LEXINGTON, O., May 12.—Charles, 9, and William, 12, sons of Mrs. Margaret Dawson, of Pendville, ePry County, were drowned in a reservoir when they fell into the water from a rope on which they were swinging. Russell Anderson, 17, was rescued by two playmates.

ANTIOCH WILL CUT OPERATING INCOME NEXT YEAR IS REVEALED

Total operating income of Antioch College will be reduced by almost $52,000 for the 1932-33 school year, according to annual financial estimates prepared by Algo D. Henderson, dean of the college.

A gross total budget of $755,400, which includes research and industrial projects associated with the school, was approved by the board of trustees at its annual meeting earlier this week.

The appropriation for strictly educational purposes, of $350,600, represents a decrease of $57,000, compared with 1931-32, Dean Henderson said.

The saving will be effected by a sliding scale reduction in salaries together with economies in plant operation.

Although present acceptances of new students for the coming year are in line with previous years, the possibility of a reduced enrollment was taken into account in preparing the budget. Guaranteed income from foundations also was budgeted at $66,700, compared with $95,000 for this year.

Routine approvals of faculty appointments and the list of students upon whom degrees are to be conferred in June at commencement exercises, subject to completion of requirements, also featured the trustee meeting.

President Arthur E. Morgan, at the board meeting, discussed progress which has been made this year in appraising the work of the last eleven years, during which Antioch has been operating on its reorganized program.

David S. Hanchett, dean of the extramural school, reported on the placement of students on cooperative jobs. At the peak of this year, he said, 387 different students have been employed, 70 per cent of the total number employed at any one time last year.

However, no more than ten students have been unemployed in any division of the school year, in spite of difficult industrial conditions. The difference in the number employed this year and last, according to Dean Hanchett, is accounted for by the larger group of freshmen pursuing a full-time study program and who will begin cooperative work as sophomores. Such a program for a part of the freshman class, he stated, eliminates part of the task of finding jobs for the most difficult group to place even in normal times—the inexperienced.

Reports from the industrial research projects connected with Antioch were also presented to the trustees. The oldest project, Antioch Shoes, research on which was begun in 1924, reported a slight increase in the number of retailers distributing the shoes this year, and sales which, while not comparable to those of last year when sales were larger than any year in the history of the project, show a gratifying stability in view of present conditions.

Aside from the financial aspect, one of the most reassuring indications is the increasing interest of schools and colleges in healthful footwear, according to J. L. Snook, director, who reported the decision of three preparatory schools to adopt "Antioch" as part of their standard equipment. He also reported that styles are now being designed at the college, with the help of Antioch women students, three-fourths of whom are estimated to be wearing the college shoe project.

Other members of the board of trustees who attended the annual meeting are Mrs. Jessie W. Armstrong of Erie, Pa.; Walter S. Case, president and director of Case, Pomeroy and Co. of New York; F. C. Caldwell of The Ohio State University; Homer C. Corry, Springfield, O., attorney; Morris E. Leeds, president of Leeds and Northrup Co. of Philadelphia; and Arthur E. Morgan, president of the college.

other election—primary or regular—stood complete. It was estimated that in the Wilberforce precinct an average of about five minutes was devoted to tabulating each ballot, on which more than 100 names of candidates appeared.

Election board officials, augmented by a special corps of assistant tabulators, stood doggedly to the job from 9:30 a. m. Tuesday until early Wednesday afternoon before calling it quits temporarily.

Without sleeping, and hardly taking time out to appease their appetites, election workers remained in the endurance contest for twenty-six straight hours.

They adjourned in the afternoon to catch a little rest, but reassembled Thursday to commence the even slower assignment of making the official count of the primary vote. This task may not be completed this week, it was predicted.

Following are the unofficial complete votes given candidates involved in contests on the Republican ticket for nominations for county, state, district and congressional offices, the returns being for all forty-eight precincts:

E. Beam, president of the board of commissioners, responded. Mrs. A. C. Messenger, recently elected regent of the Ohio D. A. R., spoke briefly and closed the ceremony with prayer.

MARSHALL MARGIN IN DISTRICT 1,029

L. T. Marshall, Xenia attorney and former state senator, polled a total of 19,518 votes in winning the Republican congressional nomination in the Seventh District.

Complete, unofficial returns from all precincts in the nine counties composing the district, gave Marshall a plurality of 1,029 votes over Edward E. Greiner, Springfield, opposition candidate, Ray Hennessy, Bellefontaine, a third entry in the race, lost his own county of Logan, where Marshall received 2,143 votes, a margin of 620 over Hennessy and 938 over Greiner.

Aaron J. Halloran, Springfield, won the Democratic congressional nomination in the district, by a total majority of 1,328 votes over Gwynn Sanders, Marysville. Tabulation of complete unofficial returns gave Halloran 5,956 votes against 4,628 for Sanders.

MRS. MOORE AND T. E. DYE ON COMMITTEE

Apparently re-elected at Tuesday's primary election on the basis of returns tabulated from every county but Warren in the Seventh District, Mrs. Margaret Moore, Springfield, and Thomas E. Dye, Urbana, will represent Democrats of this district on the party's state central committee.

Balloting on the committee race in Warren County was not reported, but the vote is small in this county and the results are not expected to change the elections of Dye and Mrs. Moore.

Dye defeated Luther Liggett, of Union County, though the latter had the endorsement of the Democratic organization of the district.

Mrs. Moore, with organization endorsement, defeated Mrs. M. S. Fischer, Springfield, who ran as an independent candidate.

Greene County voters gave a large majority to Liggett and a small majority to Mrs. Moore.

TWO SEAMEN KILLED ATTEMPTING TO MOOR DIRIGIBLE TO MAST

Twenty-five feet below the Akron. Back he went, more slowly, and entered the hatch, he reported Cowart probably could remain in his position until pulled within the ship.

Then began the task of pulling up the rope as Cowart neared the Akron, the swinging became more vicious. Snaplike jerks threatened either to dislodge him or break the rope, but finally he was hauled in opposite a gangway and pulled into the vessel.

He refused medical treatment, protested he was unharmed and instead made a tour of the Akron.

The landing deaths were the first recorded by the United States navy. At Lakehurst men have been slightly injured, but their experience with dirigibles has prevented any serious accident. The men at Camp Kearney never before had moored such a craft.

An experienced crew of men, sent there from Lakehurst, awaits the Akron at Sunnyside, near San Francisco, the destination of its turbulent transcontinental trip.

ran ahead until the complete returns were received from Cuyahoga County, where Weygand had a plurality of nearly 19,500 votes.

A surprise in the primary came in the outcome of the contests for the nominations for congressmen-at-large, when George H. Bender, Cleveland, former state senator, led the field of seven Republican candidates. Thomas J. Herbert, Cleveland, the other Republican nominee had been expected to win, but Bender had not generally been expected to cut an important figure in the race.

In the Democratic scramble for congressmen-at-large nominations, Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus, former state director of agriculture and senatorial nominee in 1928, upset the pre-primary predictions by running second, to land as one of the nominees, along with Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, party nominee for secretary of state and attorney general in previous years.

The complete list of candidates nominated by the two parties at the primary is as follows:

For governor—George White (D), incumbent, Marietta. David S. Ingalls (R), Cleveland.

For lieutenant governor—William G. Pickrel (D), incumbent, Dayton. Lee B. Palmer (R), Pataskala.

For secretary of state—George S. Myers (D), East Cleveland. George C. Braden (R), Warren.

For state auditor—Daniel E. Butler (D), Toledo. Joseph T. Tracy (R), incumbent, Columbus.

For state treasurer—Joseph T. Ferguson (D), Lancaster. Harry S. Day (R), incumbent, Fremont.

For attorney general—Herbert S. Duffy (D), Columbus. John W. Bricker (R), Columbus.

For U. S. Senator—Robert J. Bulkley (D), incumbent, Cleveland. Gilbert Bettman (R), Cincinnati.

For Chief Justice—Carl V. Weygand (D), Cleveland. Carrington T. Marshall (R), incumbent, Columbus.

For congressmen-at-large—Stephen M. Young (D), Cleveland Heights, and Charles V. Truax, (D) Bucyrus. George H. Bender (R), Cleveland Heights, and Thomas J. Herbert (R), Cleveland Heights.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The face of the Lord is against them that do evil, to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth.—Psalm xxiv, 16.

CROWDER, DIPLOMAT

The death of Major General Enoch H. Crowder brings to a close one of the most distinguished and useful careers recently developed in the United States Army. Gen. Crowder was an able lawyer, a born administrator, a writer of laws for other peoples closely associated with this country and a diplomat, as well as a soldier. The idea that all soldiers are bloodthirsty, that they prance about in gold braid seeking whom they may slay, that they serve their country only in war, does not stand up in the face of such services as this soldier-diplomat rendered over a period of more than 30 years.

The World War generation will remember Gen. Crowder best as the man who formulated and supervised the execution of the selective draft that put 2,000,000 Americans in uniform, after the United States had declared war on Germany in April, 1917. Yet long before that he had done outstanding work in connection with the transfer of the Philippines to the United States and had been worth Gen. Wood in Cuba, when the sovereignty of that country was in process of transferring from the United States to its own people. Sensing the impossibility of enforcing the Cuban Constitution without a body of administering laws, Crowder set about writing those laws. The Cuban Legislature twice passed votes of thanks to him for his services to the Cuban people. The climax of his diplomatic career was reached when he was made the first ambassador of the United States to Cuba.

When he graduated from West Point a half century ago, Crowder was assigned to the cavalry and saw service on the Mexican border and among the still troublesome Western Indians. An assignment as military instructor at the University of Missouri gave him a chance to study law. This led to his transfer to the Judge Advocate General's branch of the service, which he ultimately came to head. The pen became in his hand as mightily as the sword might have been if he had chosen to remain in the saddle.

The American people have received from their Army and Navy officers a vast amount of expert service that did not fall strictly in the line of professional duty. The careers of Generals Tasker H. Bliss and Enoch H. Crowder, to mention only two, are not to be lightly esteemed in assessing the value of the Army and Navy training in peace, as well as in war.

FUNDAMENTALLY SOUND

The President and the Secretary of the Treasury have done all they could to bring the financial difficulties of the Government to a successful conclusion. Naturally their judgment has been fallible in spots, and there is honest dissent from some features of their program. But fundamentally their plans have been sound, and point the way to clear sailing and recovery of property. Today, the principal obstacles in the way of success are not natural obstacles, but capricious, political and selfish obstructionism in the two Houses, some of it of a sort which raises a doubt about mental responsibility of a part of the members.

The country at large is quite well aware of this. What President Hoover has considered it necessary to say about the attitude of some of the Senators and Representatives toward the budget question, and regarding the "locust swarms of lobbyists" for special privileges and special groups that infest the Capitol, is not news to the people of the United States. But the very understanding they already have of conditions, ought to bring from them a quick response to Mr. Hoover's request that they judge between him and Congress; and assist him in fighting the battle "against delays and destructive legislation which impair the credit of the United States," and threaten one of the most important parts of the nonpartisan program for restoring National stability.

That they can help the situation by talking turkey to Senators and Representatives who need admonition or instruction, by neutralizing the influence of pernicious lobbyists, is a point that does not need to be argued.

WOULD MEET KING

From the department of the Lord Chamberlain comes a report that the number of applications from women who wish to be presented to King George and Queen Mary has been greater than ever this year. Preparations are now being made for two courts to be held at Buckingham Palace in May, to be followed by two in June.

A good percentage of American women generally are among those to receive the coveted "command" cards. We live in a democracy, but many women of the United States desire formal presentation at the British Court as a crowning social achievement. For the English, the courtesy of presentation is also a graceful method of meeting certain obligations.

The women commanded to make their curtsies to the King and Queen must be schooled in the etiquette of the occasion, and trained to make their bows and retire from the presence walking backward without stumbling over the trains of their elaborate gowns. Tradition decrees the general type of gown to be worn and the style of head-dress. With approximately 700 invitations issued for each court, the curtsies are made at a rate of about 10 a minute. After the ceremony a buffet supper is served. All about the palace brilliant dress uniforms contribute to the splendor. One sees the Yeomen of the Guard in their quaint costumes in the vestibule and the magnificent Gentleman-at-Arms in the throne room, all a part of the pageant.

But for many thousands of Americans the grandeur and formality merely point the contrast between court procedure and the comparative ease and simplicity with which the most humble citizen may shake hands with the President of the United States.

STUPID CRIME

The assassination of President Paul Doumer of France was a singularly stupid crime. In addition to being a tragedy which the whole world deplores, a President of France plays an important role in his country, but not a positive or aggressive one politically. He is the balance wheel of government and the host-in-chief of the Republic. It is his business to be discreet in the one capacity and to shine in the other. The death of a French president and the selection of his successor consequently is not likely to have much effect on the processes of the government, or upon the composition of the official group in actual charge of the affairs of the Nation.

The first report that Dr. Paul Gorgulov, the assassin, is a madman consequently seems much more reasonable than the recent one which suggests that he acted as an agent of the Moscow Government. Gorgulov's history, as narrated in the dispatches, suggests that he is highly eccentric if not actually irresponsible; and on the other hand, Stalin and his crowd are neither foolish nor futile, whatever other failings they may have. It seems reasonable to suppose that if they did plan an assassination in France, they would instruct their agent to kill somebody whom, from their standpoint it would be "worth while" to put out of the way, instead of selecting as a victim an inoffensive gentleman 75 years old, whose outstanding characteristic was his amiability, and who manifestly was at the end of his political career.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—The Run of the Town:

Funnyman Ed Wynn, of all people, found himself in the throes of a mike fright when he commenced his Tuesday evening attempt to converse with the other side of the wire. Wynn, whom no footlight had ever phased, but he discovered a solution quickly: make-up. Now he makes seven changes of costume during his half-hour period in the studio, regains the feel and the flip of show-business and reports himself as jaunty as ever. Ready for television, too!

Subway change-makers have a 60-cent leeway when they hand in their accounts each shift. Flo Ziegfeld is returning the compliment of his arch-rival, Earl Carroll, by leasing the gaudy show-shop in Seventh avenue bearing the latter's name. Remember when Carroll rented Ziegfeld's New Amsterdam and pointedly printed above the stage door: "Through these portals NOW pass the most beautiful girls in the world?"

Ziggy, if he were of that frame of mind, might echo above the Earl Carroll theater's door: "Under new management, the most beautiful girls in the world have taken to flocking through THESE portals now." But the most sensational publicity stunt Earl ever pulled was when he printed the phone numbers of his lookers on the program. An uproar in the public prints induced him to abandon the idea—which a Broadway columnist picked up briefly a few months ago.

AMERICAN PLAN SHOWS

Now the dance halls have taken to producing show shows to lure patrons. One of the swankier palaces of teardrops (taxi dance halls to you—and me) has offered "Blackberries," a sepias musical and "The Follies Bergere," a night club presentation. Dan Healy reverses the usual master-of-ceremonies manner, involving a brittle and sometimes stinging repartee, to use a boyish, kindly winsomeness on the floor. The ladies seem to like it.

From an East Side luncheon menu: "Ham and Eggs a la Farm." The most forlorn and deserted bit of country within 30 miles of New York is Central Park in the Eighties at 5 o'clock of a chilly morning. I say chilly advisedly, for summer dawns have found the park teeming with sleepers-out. Which brings to mind that amazing wasteland under the Manhattan Bridge approach, tenanted in the early mornings by a bizarre if pathetic portrait of human driftwood—some with miserable castles constructed of packing boxes and cardboard.

GASTRONOMIC NOTE

The best onion soup in town, to this calloused palate, is that dispensed by the Ship Grill chain. Ninety per cent of the time, when you order fillet of sole you are brought flounder, although no waiter will admit it and few know. There's a restaurant called the Dixie which has no idea what southern food is like, the personnel being strictly Italian.

Left Handed Child And His Speech; Tragedies Grow From Changing Children's Natural Bent

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Division Parental Education
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Shall I make my child use his right hand if he persists in employing his left? No.

Of course left-handed people look awkward at adapting themselves to right-handed furniture. Nevertheless, such apparent awkwardness is not at all comparable to the damage from emotional disturbance incident to making children born to be left-handed change to be right-handed.

You and I know of many tragedies growing out of such interference with the child's apparently native bent. Corral a hundred stutters and stammerers and you will find far more among them whose handedness has been tampered with than the number of such who may be found in a hundred persons chosen at random. This is an established fact. Psychologists are pretty much in accord in advising against interfering with handedness on the ground that interference may cause emotional conflicts. Some maintain that the speech centers of the brain develop in very close connection with the hand-motor centers, although this relationship has not been well established as a fact.

BALLAD

In the summer even,
While yet the dew was hoar,
I went plucking purple pansies,
Till my love should come to shore.

The fishing lights their dances
Were keeping out at sea,
And come I sung, my true love!
Come hasten home to me!

But the sea, it fell a-moaning,
And the white gulls rocked thereon;
And the young moon dropped from heaven,
And the lights hid one by one.

All silently their glances
Slipped down the cruel sea,
And wait! cried the night and storm—
Wait, till I come to thee!

—Harriet P. Spofford (1835-1921)

"Let me say in conclusion that in no instance should handedness be changed if its shift means any apparent emotional disturbance; that so far as I can discern there are few changes without such disturbance, and that I believe the world would be a lot happier if parents and teachers would mind their own business so far as the child's handedness is concerned."

I should add, for the comfort of those parents who, very sensitive to social conventions, are eager to have their left-handed child conform to the right hand, that when the child approaches adolescence he will almost surely acquire, on his own accord, right-handedness at eating.

Please let no one take the trouble as some have, to write asking if I charge a fee for answering their questions. Of course not; neither would I accept a fee from any of my readers who would come to see me personally about their problems. It is a real pleasure to meet my readers face to face, and to read and answer their letters. To know or to believe that my feeble efforts help make a few homes a little happier is a rich reward.

FACTS AND FANCIES
Making Moving Easier

Even if the house or apartment you are moving into has never been lived in before, the tenant is expected to attend to such tasks as removing the labels from the plumbing fixtures and making bathroom equipment sparkling and sanitary with hot soapsuds. Most likely windows will need to be washed and extra shelves built into the closets.

You will find it easier to straighten out the inevitable disorder of moving if you have devoted an hour or so in advance to screwing hooks and brackets into clothes closets and kitchen cabinets. Some male member of the family should attend to this part of the job.

If you do nothing else, put up the brackets for curtain rods so that you can hang fresh curtains at the windows just as soon as you find them. Dainty curtains, more than anything else, will give the rooms a homelike atmosphere, even before they have been put to rights, so make sure to have freshly laundered ones ready in advance.

You won't want to transport soiled and shabby furnishings to clean new surroundings. Send the rugs and upholstered furniture away to be cleaned, or if you want to avoid the expense of a professional job, wash them yourself before the turmoil of moving sets in. Don't hesitate to freshen up your best rugs or upholstery furniture at home. Just remember to tackle only a small portion at a time with thick mild soapuds and lukewarm water and blot up the moisture before it soaks below the surface.

Moving time is a good time to discard all unnecessary furnishings that may have cluttered up your rooms or your closet shelves. A few well chosen pieces, well cared for, will make your new home far more livable and attractive than a larger assortment of objects that have outlasted their usefulness.

We are all standing at that door, but sometimes we do not know it is there, or we forget that it will open at a touch for us. It's a great tragedy for a man to fall when he stands on the solid threshold of the victory he seeks when he stands at that door and does not open it.

When we have gone without food for days testify that the first few days are painful indeed. They dream of food and suffer greatly. Then, suddenly, they seem to reach a balance; the body seems to decide that if it to be deprived of food it must try, somehow, to get along without it. And it does, for a while, without pain, without complaint.

I remember a time when I went without sleep for nearly three days. It was necessary that I should. The end of the first day was difficult, but I endured it. The second day was torture, and there were times when I felt rather light in the head. Coming into the third day I was normal again. I felt as if I had rid myself forever of the need of sleep. I felt happy and strong and greatly alive. Apparently I had struck down into reserves. I had not known where mine and was living on them. I was able to sleep again. I threw myself at the foot of a tree and slept only my usual eight hours and awakened then fully refreshed.

We come into experiences that seem too great for us to bear. We have endured too much, we think. We have passed the limit of our power to suffer. . . We hang on, pass beyond that point and go through a door into a room where everything seems possible to our mortal selves and no suffering is too great for us to endure, to conquer.

When we are all standing at that door, but sometimes we do not know it is there, or we forget that it will open at a touch for us. It's a great tragedy for a man to fall when he stands on the solid threshold of the victory he seeks when he stands at that door and does not open it.

Many Things Swallowed By Baby

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Pins, peanut shells, paper clips, dimes, nails, pennies, thumb tacks, egg shells, watermelon seeds, buttons, small toys in the form of bicycle riders, jack stones, safety pins, open and shut—these are some of the things that have been found in the windpipes and gullets of children.

How do they get in? Especially one wonders how objects of such size get in. Of course, they get in by being put first in the mouth. Then a sudden deep breath wafts them into the windpipe or they are gulped into the gullet and get stuck there.

The astonishing thing is that they can be sucked past the glottis into the windpipe with no sensation. A doctor friend of mine had this experience: he was tapping his teeth with a pin, when suddenly he found it was gone. He looked on the floor for it, then it occurred to him that he might have inhaled it. An X-ray picture of his chest revealed it in the bronchial tubes, from which it was removed. He felt absolutely no sensation as the pin went into his windpipe—not even enough irritation to cause a cough.

In the case of a young child, then, the accident may occur and the child will not feel enough discomfort to complain about it. How can the mother suspect such an occurrence? Are there any symptoms which indicate a foreign body in the windpipe or gullet?

In the gullet or oesophagus a foreign body is more painful than in the windpipe. It causes a sense of pressure and great discomfort on swallowing. Difficulty in swallowing is always a symptom which should be investigated.

In the windpipe, a foreign body, after being lodged there a short time, causes paroxysms of coughing, on any movement or change of position. Asthma is also likely to occur. The X-ray will confirm the presence of a foreign body in the bronchial tubes.

But prevention is worth several pounds of cure and should be carefully emphasized in the nursery. In fact, not only in the nursery, but everywhere. Adults have the experience almost as frequently as children.

Do not allow anything in the mouth while running or playing. Do not allow anything in the mouth while riding in an automobile. Do not allow a child to put buttons, coins, pins, especially peanut shells (which lead to a very dangerous lung condition if inhaled) in the mouth.

Be careful in the selection and preparation of food. Get all the shell out of the child's egg. There are many cases of inhaled egg shells from disregard of this rule.

Definition Of Ideal Girl Asked

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What is the ideal girl? That is what a young woman wants to know. If I can tell her she will try to be that ideal girl and hopes thus to win "him man."

"Dear Miss Lee: I am deeply in love with a young man seven years my senior. He is beyond a doubt, the ideal I have always wanted to meet, and satisfies my every expectation."

"Please tell me as completely as possible what characteristics make the ideal girl."

Virginia Lee girl. I want to be his ideal always and I know that men of his tender, kind and loving nature have pretty definite ideas.

Not knowing the young man I am sure I can't tell what his ideal would be. Ann, but I can tell you what my idea of an ideal girl would be, and the type I know boys admire.

In the first place, I would advise a girl to be happy. Once in a while a girl with a perpetual moan will appeal to the sympathy of the male of the species and he will yearn to spend his life cherishing her and keeping adverse winds from blowing on her. But the sad-eyed damsel who wants continually to weep on some man's shoulder is usually dubbed considerable of a bore. A "miling face is always attractive."

In the second place, our ideal girl is sweet tempered. She doesn't "fly off the handle" at every little thing. She has plenty of spirit and can take her own part if need be, but she isn't stinging temper tantrums at short intervals. She has self control.

A third trait of our ideal girl is consideration for others. She has initiative to plan things and to carry through the plans, but she doesn't always insist on having her own way. She thinks of what others may like to do and is always willing to give in to the will of the majority.

And my ideal girls always has a good time. She enjoys expensive times with the best of them, but she can have an equally good time on a hike, in the country or a steak roast, or just window shopping. She makes fun for others, too, so that the person who is her companion feels happier for having been her companion.

Then my ideal girl can do things—just BE. She can do the homely things like washing dishes and cooking, she can mend neatly and can lend a hand when there is sickness. In fact, my ideal is an efficient person—not a helpless one.

And of course it goes without saying that she's an outdoor girl and is neat and clean and sweet and smart.

Is this too much to expect in one girl? Well, it's an ideal, you know, and a mighty good one to work toward, don't you think?

Undecided Blue Eyes: If you can't keep on dating this boy without doing as he wishes, stop dating him. If you gave in you would always regret it.

DEAR MISS GLAD: I've been told that frequent colonic irrigations are very effective in reducing weight. I'm an admittedly lazy individual, but I really am quite anxious to reduce. Would you advise me to try this method? "REAH."

I certainly would not advise you to try the method you are contemplating. A colonic irrigation can be most beneficial when really necessary. But if taken too often these irrigations can have a definitely detrimental effect on the healthy.

They will tend gradually to destroy the normal action of the bowels, and may even cause serious stomach and intestinal disorders. Frequent colonic irrigations force the bulky foods, which should move through the intestinal tract slowly, to too speedy action. Such artificial cleansing should not be necessary. For evacuation should be a normal function of the body. I personally think that the safest and most effective way to reduce is by proper exercising and sane dieting.

"Dear Miss Glad: Gee, am I proud of my hair now! And it's all through your kind advice, too. You see, not so very long ago my hair was very dry and thin, and just full of split ends. But I went at those castor oil treatments described in your "Beauty Culture" booklet as you suggested, and now—well, you'd never recognize it as the same head of hair. What I want this time is the formula of that henna and castile soap shampoo that you printed no so long ago. Can you give it to me?" "D. G. T."

To prepare the shampoo that you refer to, take a cake of castile soap and cut it into fine shavings. Add to this two ounces of powdered pure Egyptian henna, one teaspoon of boric acid and a quart of boiling water. Allow the entire mixture to simmer until all the soap is dissolved. Then permit it to cool. When using, give the hair three latherings with the mixture, and permit the last lather to remain on for from 8 to 10 minutes. Then rinse the hair thoroughly, and use a vinegar

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin for each. To cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs", two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT RETURNED BY CORONER HAINES

A verdict of accidental death was returned by Dr. R. L. Haines, coroner, in the case of John L. Turner Jr., 58, prominent farmer, near Bellbrook, who was found dead in his barn Wednesday noon.

Turner and his son, James, had been shelling corn in the barn. The son left to obtain more corn and when he returned he found his father lying on the opposite side of a low fence in the barn, with a wound in his head. A 20-gauge double barreled shotgun, kept in the barn to shoot crows, was lying about eight feet from the body. Turner had heard crows and had started outside to shoot them and as the gun had a "quick" trigger it is thought it accidentally discharged or that he fell over the fence, about four feet high, causing the gun to discharge.

The charge entered the back of his head and there were no powder marks to show that the shot had been fired at close range. Death was instantaneous. Although Mr. Turner had not been well for several months there was no cause for him to have committed suicide which was reported when the body was first found.

Private funeral services will be held at the home, one and one-half miles west of Bellbrook, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be made in Bellbrook Cemetery. Friends may call at the home any time Thursday evening or Friday morning from 10 until 12 o'clock.

ONLY RAIL SYSTEM IN WORLD OWNED BY CHILDREN

The only railway in the world entirely owned by children is in daily operation in Mexico City. It is a five-mile system in the front yard of President Pasquel Rubio. It was constructed three years ago when 100,000 children of the capital city financed it with 12,000,000 pesos. As stockholders they meet once a year to receive dividends. On its 24-inch track, the tiny train rattles and roars through the grounds of beautiful Chapultepec park, where the president's palace is situated. Left, the train is seen pulling out of its terminal, a dwarfed edition of the city's Union station; right, passing through a miniature tunnel. Even the stockholders must pay to ride.

SUSPECTS IN SAFE-BLOWING IN XENIA UNDER ARREST IN LONDON

Two old-time safe blowers in custody at London, O., with prison records ranging from thirty to forty-three years, are believed by Police Chief O. H. Cornwell to have perpetrated the safe robbery at the Johnson Motor Sales, Springfield Pike, April 28, although the chief has no way of confirming his suspicions.

The chief is without actual evidence to prove his belief and the two prisoners, one 72 years of age and the other 68, refused to talk when he interviewed them in the Madison County jail.

The men, giving the names of John Kessler, 72, and Charles Henderson, 68, are in jail in lieu of bonds of $5,000 each, after being held to the grand jury for carrying concealed weapons and having in their possession implements designed for burglary purposes.

They pleaded not guilty, following their arrest by London police recently, after they had driven their auto into a curb.

In their car police found four ounces of nitroglycerin, detonators, a gun and burglar equipment. A heavy charge of nitroglycerin was used to blast open the safe in the Johnson motor agency offices. The only clue was the vague outline of a fingerprint on a piece of soap, too blurred to be of much value in the investigation of the robbery.

Both men, one of whom has a prison record dating back as far as 1889, admitted having spent most of their lives behind prison bars for safe-blowing jobs.

Attempting a more difficult play this year than is usually essayed by a senior class, seniors of Central High School presented "Nathan Hale", by Clyde Fitch, with singular success in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium at the high school Wednesday evening. The play itself, the characterizations, the acting and the novel scenery merited enthusiastic reception from the audience.

"Nathan Hale", based on the historical account, is the story of an able teacher who left his log school house to fight in the war for independence. His pretty fiancée, "Alice Adams", had been his "naughtiest" pupil for the sake of being "kept in" for a rendezvous. Her brother, "Tom Adams", portrayed by John Lauman, did not understand the situation and all most complicated matters by insisting on "staying in", too. When the war broke out, Alice sent him off to war having promised to be a soldier's sweetheart. When the call came for a volunteer to spy on the British plans he answered the challenge but while doing this work he was discovered by a British lover of "Alice" and sentenced to be shot as a spy. "Alice" came to him a few minutes before his death.

The portrayals of "Nathan Hale" and "Alice Adams" were ably done by Charles Weaver and Miss Katherine Chew. The comedy parts were taken by Andrew Frazer, as "Jasper", the colored servant, who was always present when there was love-making to be done; and by John Beacham, who as "Ebenezer Lebanon", was afraid to shoulder a gun but was more afraid of his new mother-in-law, "Mistress Knowlton", portrayed by Elizabeth Eavey, whose performance was perhaps the most natural of all. Martha Ann Baughn, as "Angelica", who secretly married the school master's assistant, was well chosen for her part.

The play moved rapidly from incident to incident, comic, exciting or otherwise, but a dignified element remained throughout. Appropriate scenery also added to the effectiveness of the play. The entire production, directed by Miss Olive Allen, of the English department, showed great organization and professional skill. Miss Allen was assisted by a faculty committee composed of Miss Paye Cavanaugh, Miss Marjorie Orr and Miss Agnes Ballantyne.

The play will be repeated Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

FORD IS NOMINATED FOR STATE SENATOR TO OPPOSE TEMPLIN

By an unofficial plurality of 216 votes, based on complete returns from the five counties, James E. Ford, Ross County, won the Democratic nomination for state senator from the fifth-sixth senatorial district, defeating Joseph Vincent, also of Ross County, at Tuesday's primary election.

Ford carried four of the five counties. He lost his own county of Ross by 1,089 to 129, but overcame this deficit by piling up huge majorities in Greene, Clinton, Highland and Fayette Counties.

Ford's total vote was 2,129 as compared with 1,913 for his opponent.

The vote by counties was: Ross: Ford, 129; Vincent, 1,089; Highland: Ford, 721; Vincent, 261; Fayette: Ford, 648; Vincent, 155; Clinton: Ford, 186; Vincent, 131; Greene: Ford, 445; Vincent, 177.

N. Floyd Templin, Clarksville, state representative from Clinton County, was unopposed for the Republican nomination for state senator.

Now you can buy on faith

"I talked with grandma the other day," said the young housewife. "I told her I dreaded this daily shopping — that I hardly knew where to begin. And she made me feel ashamed; she actually did!"

We know just about what her grandma told her. "In my day you would have dreaded shopping much more. It was a real chore then. From place to place you went, looking, looking, tasting this, sniffing at that, buying on suspicion and not on faith. You didn't know who made the things you bought; they didn't have labels; most of them weren't in packages.

"Now you know by name most of the things you buy. You buy a can of So-and-so's Beans today, and you know they'll be just the same when you buy them again. You read the advertisements in your paper, see where the best values are offered, make up your list, and out you go and get it over with in a jiffy! Count your blessings, my dear — they are many."

Trust the products advertised in this newspaper. Read the advertisements and simplify your shopping.

A broadside to two fisted, tight fisted men.

Don't think for a minute that we don't know you've tightened up.

And don't think we're not on our toes with even BETTER values than you are insisting on.

"WE WANT LOWER PRICES OR WE WON'T DO BUSINESS." That's what you said.

"HERE ARE FINER GARMENTS AT LOWER COSTS THAN YOU ARE ASKING FOR"...we reply.

A "run-down" body can't stand up under work and worry

Maybe that "tired feeling" is due to a lowered blood count. Worry, overwork, diet neglect or some sickness often reduces those precious workers that make for strength.

DO YOU INHALE?

Here goes the last "sacred cow" in cigarette advertising!

INHALING has long been an "untouchable" a "sacred cow"! Why? . . . Because in every tobacco leaf—even the finest, the mildest—nature hides certain impurities which, when not removed, are unkind to delicate membranes!

And since, knowingly or unknowingly, we all inhale some part of the smoke from our cigarette—Lucky Strike developed that great scientific process which removes certain impurities. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

MAR-NOT SHERWIN-WILLIAMS VARNISH

FAST-DRI

You don't need to be afraid to use and enjoy a floor when it's made beautiful with Mar-not. Scuffing it up doesn't ruin the finish. Mar-not keeps the floor protected as long as the thinnest film of it remains. Extreme toughness makes this possible being unaffected by water. If "cheaper" varnish has destroyed your interest in varnish floors, you surely will enjoy using Mar-not. It makes printed linoleum wear as long as expensive inlaid, in fact, Mar-not outwears any floor finish we know of. It's rapid drying, too, convenient—have a floor like new, all ready to use again in less than half a day. It costs you less to keep your floors looking well when you use Mar-not.

KILKARE PARK WILL BE OPERATED UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Under new management, Kilkare Park, long popular recreational and outing center, located three miles west of Xenia off the Dayton-Xenia Pike, will again be open to the public this summer, starting Saturday, May 14.

Dayton interests have leased the picnic and outing resort from Frank Hustmyer, this city, and the new organization, known as M. W. M. Enterprises, Inc., has already made a number of improvements calculated to provide a wide variety of pastimes.

There will be boating and bathing in the Little Miami River, which borders the large acreage, and a riding stable has also been established.

The center will be known as the New Kilkare Park Club, and through an improved dining arrangement, will provide Saturday and Sunday evening dinners for groups and individuals, catering also to small conventions and similar meetings. Engagements for special parties will also be booked.

As the summer season advances, the new operators plan to expand the dining hall accommodations for a daily program.

Beginning with the opening date Saturday night, there will be dancing on Wednesday and Saturday evenings with music furnished by Jim West's Troubadors in the park pavilion.

Alice in New Wonderland At Eighty

Inspiration of Lewis Carroll's Fantasy Comes to Honor Memory of Childhood Friend Who Wrote Immortal Classic.

The original Alice of Lewis Carroll's immortal fantasy entered a new Wonderland when the liner Berengaria docked at New York on her last trip from England. But this time there was no White Rabbit, Mad Hatter or March Hare. Instead, Alice, who is Mrs. Alice Hargreaves, looked upon a Wonderland of towering skyscrapers and slender spires that seem to point to still another land that lies above the clouds. Mrs. Hargreaves, now 80 years old, was the little girl for whom Lewis Carroll created the land of beautiful nonsense seventy years ago. Carroll told the story of Wonderland to Alice and her two sisters. But though the sisters were content to hear the story from the lips of their creator, little Alice Liddell, fearful lest she forget a detail, insisted upon the dreamy professor of mathematics writing the story in a book for her. This Carroll did and that same manuscript, penned to amuse a child was later sold for $75,000. Mrs. Hargreaves is here to attend the 100th anniversary celebrations of the birth of Lewis Carroll at Columbia University. She is accompanied by her only surviving son, Captain Caryl Hargreaves, of the Scots Guards, and her sister Miss Rhoda Liddell.

NEW YORK, May 12.—When the giant liner Berengaria nosed into her berth at New York recently, it brought an 80-year-old Alice into a new Wonderland.

She is Mrs. Alice Hargreaves, widow of Reginald Hargreaves, English country gentleman and scholar, and the original Alice of Lewis Carroll's immortal fantasy, who went down the rabbit hole and through the looking glass into the wonderland of Carroll's creation.

But in this new Wonderland she saw no White Rabbit, no Mad Hatter, no Duchess, Duck and Dodo, who met in the Pool of Tears. Instead she saw a skyline of towering skyscrapers and spires, like giant fingers pointing into cloudland; batteries of movie cameras with sound attachments that will bring her face and voice to thousands of cinema screens throughout the country, and dozens of reporters, all eager to "get the story" of one of the greatest stories in history.

It is seventy years since Lewis Carroll the shy, imaginative don of Christ Church College, Oxford, created his wonderland of beautiful nonsense to amuse his little 10-year-old friend, Alice Liddell, and her two sisters. The sisters were content to hear the story from the lips of its creator, but little Alice, fearful lest she forget any detail of the fantastic journey through Wonderland, insisted that he "write it in a book for me."

Thanks to Alice's childish insistence, the world has been gladdened with the beautiful story and the Wonderland became a play ground for children everywhere.

Laboriously Carroll printed the story, illustrated it and bound it in a little volume for his beloved Alice. A few years ago, aging and impetuous, Mrs. Hargreaves saw that treasure house manuscript of her childhood auctioned at Sotheby's, London, for a sum around $75,000.

Now, however, the octogenarian Alice will be privileged to hold again that little hand-bound manuscript she inspired seventy years ago. She has come across the sea to be present at the 100th anniversary of Lewis Carroll's birth, celebrated at Columbia University, and the Wonderland, written in Carroll's own hand, is part of the collection which has been loaned for the occasion by Elbridge Johnson, who is now its owner.

The little Alice of the story is today a grandmother, bent, wrinkled and frail, but her eyes are as clear as that day seventy years ago when they gleamed in amazement as she listened to the tale of the Mock Turtle, the Walrus and the Boojum, told by the dreamy Oxford professor of mathematics.

Mrs. Hargreaves has met and weathered the storms of life. She raised three sons, whom she waited to sleep in childhood, telling and retelling the story of the fantastic Wonderland of which she was the heroine. She saw two of her boys march off to the World War, never to return. Then six years ago she buried her husband, who had been a dreamer and a scholar, remarkably similar to Lewis Carroll, the friend of her childhood.

But troubles have not bowed her spirit. She still sees in the world a Wonderland of reality, believing that the sting of life's thorns is compensated for by the fragrance of its roses.

Good Gardening

A GARDEN IN A TUB By DEAN HALLIDAY

Garden Expert for Central Press and The Gazette

"Did I hear you say that one could have a flower garden in a tub?" asked my neighbor.

"Yes," I replied, "many people have a water garden in a tub sunk in the ground."

Holes should be drilled in the sides of the tub and covered with fine screening to take care of the overflow. Sink the tub in the ground within three inches of the top. Since lilies need rich soil as well as sunshine. A special soil mixture should be used in the tub to insure best results.

A good mixture of soil to use for water lilies is one-third ordinary good top soil mixed with two-thirds well rotted cow manure. Spread this mixture in the tub to a depth that will allow the lilies to be planted in about eight inches of water. Place the lily so that the crown of the bulb is just beneath the surface of the soil.

The leaf spread of the water lily is sometimes very great. In a tub garden it can be regulated by planting the lilies in six or eight-inch pots, thus dwarfing them in growth. When this is done three or four pots can be placed in a tub about two and a half feet in diameter. This dwarfing of the plants will make the blooms smaller, but will not detract from their beauty.

Cromwell Nears Top Soon To Be Hard To Stop

That famous old picture, "Tol'able David," which made Richard Barthelmess one of the great stars, has started Richard Cromwell on the road to fame.

Barthelmess leaped to almost instant stardom when he appeared in the picture back in silent days. Cromwell, playing the same part, was effective in the talking version of the same story.

Cromwell got a "lucky break" when he was chosen to take the role so admirably played by Barthelmess. A notice went out to all ambitious young actors in Hollywood to report on a certain day for interviews and tests. Cromwell was one of almost 300 young men who replied. He stood in line a day and a half and several times had almost decided to go home and resume his work on drawing board and clay modeling, giving up his ambitions to become an actor.

Toward the end of the second day, he reached the inner sanctum of the casting office and was interviewed. He admitted that his only experience in pictures had been a few days of extra work. He was too tired and discouraged to make much effort to sell himself. He went home and promptly forgot about the interview, but the following day the studio called him. He ran all the way to the casting office and was breathless when he was admitted.

He claims he'll never have a thrill like that he experienced when he was told that he had been chosen for the part. He has appeared well in other pictures since and bids fair to climb to the top.

Douglas Fairbanks lost six pounds in Papeete while making his picture, "Robinson Crusoe of the South Seas" and he tells many fascinating stories about the company's visit there on location.

Chuck Lewis, once a javelin throw in the Olympics, threw a spear native fashion twenty-five feet farther than the native champion of the islands and the poor fellow was so downcast they had to tell him Chuck was champion of the world.

EXHAUST SUPPLIES AT ONE PRECINCT

Citizens who exercise their right of franchise in the three precincts of the fourth Xenia city ward became unexpectedly "vote-minded" at Tuesday's primary election.

Hence, around 5 o'clock in the afternoon, an hour and one-half before the polls were due to close, a hurry call was sent to board of elections officials for fresh supplies of ballots.

So unexpectedly heavy was the vote in the colored section that ballot supplies in these three precincts were entirely exhausted. But the election board was not caught short. It had reserve supplies ready for just such an emergency, and none of the third ward residents were deprived of an opportunity to vote.

EXAMINE 46 DURING
DIAGNOSTIC CHEST
CLINIC ON TUESDAY

Forty-six persons were examined at a diagnostic chest clinic conducted on the second floor of the Court House here Tuesday by the Greene County Health League. Dr. F. C. Anderson, of the Mt. Vernon State Sanatorium and Dr. Warren Briedenbach, of Stillwater Sanatorium, Dayton, were diagnosticians.

Of the forty-six persons examined there were found nine positive cases of tuberculosis, seventeen suspected cases of tuberculosis and twenty negative cases. Among the twenty negative cases the following defects were found: three with infected tonsils, one suffering from heart trouble, caused by infected tonsils, one asthma case; one glandular condition and three dietary disorders. Six of the negative cases are in open contact with tubercular cases and these persons will be under observation.

A similar clinic was held here by the league in December and thirty-two persons were examined then. Mrs. Guy-Harold Smith, Columbus, has been engaged here for several weeks by the league arranging for the clinic, which is financed from the Christmas Health Seal fund.

Persons who assisted at the clinic in addition to the diagnosticians were Mrs. W. C. Clark, Bellbrook; Mrs. McCarthy, Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer, Miss Helen Smith, Mrs. Paul Halder and Mrs. Smith, nurses; Miss Harriett Luce, from the state department of health, Columbus; Mrs. Roy Gordon, Mrs. Hazel Toms and Miss Ruth Mitchell, typists; Mrs. Jack Velzy, Osborn; Mrs. E. D. Belden, Bellbrook and Mrs. George Baldner.

HOME TRUSTEE HERE
FACES BANK CHARGE

Charged with accepting bank deposits after the Monro Bank at Woodfield, O. of which he was a director, became insolvent, and of making false statements to the Ohio banking department, Herbert R. Mooney, Woodfield, a member of the board of trustees of the O. S. and S. O. Home in Xenia, pleaded not guilty in that city Wednesday.

Mooney was released on bond of $1,500 after his arraignment in common pleas court, and defense counsel indicated a charge of venue for the trial would be asked.

Mooney, a former commander of the Ohio department of the American Legion is the youngest of three brothers who were directors of the closed Woodfield bank.

FOUND HOBOING

Arrested as a vagrant in Cleveland, 19-year-old Florence Stone told police she had "ridden the rods" from Buffalo, N. Y., where she had lost her job, and was headed for Chicago to visit her brother. The girl was attired in man's clothing. Her traveling companion was Stanley Pomaka, 19, who had escorted her under freight trains and helped her find comfortable spots on the rods, she said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a more movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Request a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

NEW JASPER

A very good Mother's Day program was given at the Sunday School hour Sunday morning. Mrs. Ray Fudge played a piano selection, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," a song "Rock Me to Sleep Mother" by Eileen Huston; a poem entitled "Mother" was read by Charlotte Hagler and Mrs. Fred St. John read two of Edgar Guest's poems "Back Home" and "It Takes a Heap of Livin'."

Spahr sang a beautiful selection and Rev. Stitzel preached an appropriate sermon and the quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Spahr and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hagler, sang "My Mother's Prayer."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred St. John had Sunday dinner with Mrs. St. John's mother, Mrs. Walton of Spring Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. LeValley and Mrs. Grant St. John spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith of Spring Valley.

Mr. Thurman Tidd met with a very painful accident one day last week when the seat on the corn planter broke and he fell, a part of the planter penetrating his leg, cutting a severe gash. He is getting along very well.

Mrs. A. Morrow of Dayton, is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Russell Spahr.

Mr. Herbert Pickering of this place and Miss Mary Hurley of Lumberton, were married last week. Their many friends extend congratulations.

Mr. William Hayes and wife were driving a Studebaker on the Jamestown-Paintersville Pike last Monday and upset near Fawcett's Corner, the machine turning upside down. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes escaped with only minor bruises.

Miss Lella Fudge of Ludlow, Ky. spent the week end at home.

The "Girls Who Do" Sunday School class will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Fudge, Wednesday night. Russell Spahr's class is invited to attend also.

The Rural Improvement Club met at the home of Mrs. Walter St. John Wednesday evening. Most all the members were present and several visitors. The members and honorary members gave interesting sketches of musicians or noted writers of music, the day had been arranged to be music day. A solo by Mrs. C. E. Thuma, Jamestown, a musical reading by Edith Collins, Columbus; two duets by Pearl Spahr and Clara Hagler; talk on Sousa by Mrs. Charles Bickett and piano music and readings by Mrs. Mae Denham of Xenia, were all very much enjoyed and appreciated by all present. Refreshments were served and a good social time was enjoyed. The next meeting will be held June 9 at Mrs. W. R. Rockhold's home. This will be guest day.

"I predicted something a year ago... says Floyd Gibbons

"Has it come true?...
well, LISTEN!"

Hello Everybody! Back home! And right from the heart—hoo-ray!

Yesterday, Mukden and Shanghai and points east. Rickshaws, refugees, pidgin English, red havoc, and from sun up on, the roar of those deadly Nipponese war birds that might lay one-time velly bad egg wrong place if some nervous little yellow bomber up there made a miscue.

That was yesterday. Today—good old solid American Ohio, a lot better place to be.

Well, I sure had plenty on my mind while I roamed along the sidelines of that hectic Oriental disagreement. No use saying different. But at that, believe you me, I never forgot Ohio and a certain day about a year ago out there when a few specialty hot scientific chaps told me something brand new about making gasoline. Not only told me but showed me how it was done, over there in that great sizzling Soho Refinery.

They convinced me, right then and there. And maybe you remember I cut loose and told you Ohio folks to expect great things of this new-day motor fuel of Soho's.

Naturally, I was interested in knowing just how good a predictor I'd really turned out to be. Was heat-tempered Soho as good as the molecule-busting boy friends insisted it had to be? As super-extra in pep-and-mileage delivery as step-ahead science and sheer steely nerve entitled it to be? Those were the questions that kept bobbing up in my mind every now and then, all through these last busy months.

So—first thing when I hit home sweet home I had to find out. In a kind of way I was god-papa to those new Soho gasolines and I sure wanted to know how the children were coming along, now that they'd celebrated their first birthday.

Take it or leave it, I'm not always talking. I can ask questions and I can listen. So just the other day I shot back to Ohio and buzzed everybody in sight. I went into the highways and byways—mostly highways. And what a reception I got! By golly, it did the old heart good. All I had to do was mention X-70 or Soho Ethyl and back would come the good words—plenty of 'em. "Great stuff!" ... "Sure peeps up the ol' bus" ... "Any good? Say, you can't say enough about it, Floyd" ... and that's the way it went, morning 'til night.

I didn't put my questions in such a way so that the answer would have to be yes, either. I'd say to a man pulling into a parking lot—I'd say, "This X-70 propaganda sounds nifty—but on the square now, is it right or wrong?" Then I'd get the same old come back, "Been using it all winter and you couldn't get me to change. Got another tankful just this morning. It's right, I'm telling you—all the time!"

Yes, boys and girls. All the time and everywhere. Hotel lobbies, luncheon tables, quiet corners and busy corners, the answer was always the same. "Heat-tempered" Soho? You bet. Okay! Get wise to yourself, friend, and fill up with it for more and faster and smoother and cheaper miles!"

Later on, I'm going to tell you about some of the other reactions I got from people who've had a chance now to give Soho X-70 and Soho Ethyl a year-round, all-weather test. Not right now. Later.

Floyd Gibbons

Floyd on the firing line finds out from the boys who actually man the pumps what they and their customers think of heat-tempered gasoline. The old Headline Hunter gets his gas facts straight from the source.

Always the inquiring reporter Gibbons has probably asked more questions than any man now alive. Here he is asking the motorists of Ohio what they think of heat-tempered gasoline, now that time has tested it around the seasons.
